CLASS OVERVIEW

We are pleased to announce the availability of a three-day PLX 101: Basic Analysis and Internet Communications class in San Francisco, CA, hosted by the San Francisco Police Department and taught by PenLink. The class will be held Tuesday through Thursday, April 30 – May 2, 2019.

PLX 101 welcomes beginning users to our updated communications-based software, PLX. This software combines the analysis and collection aspects of PenLink, LINCOLN, and Xnet into one program. The primary focus of PLX 101 is to provide an overview of the functionality of the software and to share best practices on how to use it. In addition, this class assists agents and analysts who are migrating from PenLink 8 to PLX. By utilizing real-life scenarios, participants return to the workplace confident in their skills and ready to utilize the benefits of this software more completely.

The Internet Communications class is designed to equip users with the knowledge and skills required to effectively analyze the vast number of internet communications that can be captured and loaded into PLX. Instruction includes lecture, demonstrations, and hands-on experience.
